SERGT. ELLIS PASSES TO THE GREAT BEYOND

VETERAN OF MANY WARS, WHO HAD LIVED A STIRRING AND VARIED LIFE, DIES AT TALLAHASSEE AFTER 31 YEARS OF SERVICE AS NIGHT WATCHMAN AT THE STATE CAPITOL.

Special to The Journal.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 20.—Sergeant Ellis, bulked of his oft-repeated determination to round out his one hundred years of life, passed away Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock.

For thirty-one years Sergt. Ellis was night watchman at the state Capitol, and in that period he formed friendships with a long line of governors, cabinet officers, judges and public men of every degree. These friendships have been a source of great gratification and solace during the many months the old man has been kept a prisoner at home by that enemy of the aged, rheumatism, and many were the interesting incidents connected with these personages he would recall for the entertainment of his many visitors.

"The Sergeant," as he was universally known, before coming to Florida had lived a stirring and varied life. He was born in London, Eng., on the 7th day of February, 1826, just seven years later than his beloved sovereign, Queen Victoria, for whom he felt always the most loyal devotion. Although a captain in the war between the states, he clung to the title earned in her service, considering it the badge of greater distinction. He entered this service in 1844 and served his novitiate at Parker's barracks, Isle of Wight. Later he came over to Canada by way of England at the outbreak of the Crimean war, through which he fought, taking part in the battles of Alma, Balaklava, Inkerman and in the siege of Sebastopol. Upon his arrival in the United States he enlisted with the United States Artillery at Philadelphia, beginning his active service in this country in the Seminole War in Florida. In the war between the States he was a member of Battery E, Second United States Artillery, and as such was in the Shenandoah campaign, the battles of Antietam, Chancellorsville, and Gettysburg. After the war he was sent to Florida to take charge of several plantations in Leon county where the negroes were inclined to be unruly, and to look after the harvesting of the crops. Since then he has been a permanent resident of this county, leaving the Federal service for employment with Mr. Thomas J. Perkins, one of the wealthiest and most respected of Tallahassee's pioneer citizens.

Upon his marriage with an English girl whom he met in Tallahassee, Sergt. Ellis entered into the peaceful business of a florist, and for many years supplied lovers with floral offerings, brides with bouquets and mourners with funeral wreaths. He lived among his rosebushes, and there they have lived a happy and peaceful life, bringing up children to be the comfort of their old age. The sergeant has been the victim of rheumatism for several years, and, though doctors and friends realized that his days were soon to be numbered, the old hero clung to life with a cheerful tenaciousness that neither weight of years nor pains of illness could subdue. But Thursday so imperative was the call to surrender that the aged veteran could not obey.

In the city cemetery his tomb has long awaited him, prepared close to the side of his "little Davy-boy," whose death many years ago was so heart-breaking an experience for his devoted father. His wife and three daughters still survive him.

Interments will take place Sunday afternoon.

CONCANNON'S ASSAILANTS SENTENCED

TWO BLUEJACKETS AND A TRAVELING MAN PLEADED GUILTY BEFORE JUDGE E. D. BEGGS YESTERDAY MORNING AND SENTENCE WAS PASSED.

J. Gillis and P. E. Tidwell, the two bluejackets, and C. E. Horne, the traveling salesman, who were charged with assaulting Alderman J. E. Concannon a week ago today, were given a hearing before Judge E. D. Beggs, of the court of record, yesterday morning and all of them pleaded guilty.

The two bluejackets were each sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs or serve two months at hard labor for the county, while Horne was sentenced to pay a fine of $35 and costs or serve two months at hard labor for the county.

The evidence showed that the traveling man was the one who kicked Mr. Concannon while he was down, which accounts for his receiving a heavier sentence than the bluejackets.
